The Story of Bloomingdales

THE story of the start and subsequent phenomenal growth of Bloomingdale Brothers is a vivid illustration of what integrity, enterprise and advertising can accomplish.

Just thirty years ago, in April, 1872, the firm of Bloomingdale Brothers was founded. It had a very modest beginning in a small store at 938 Third Avenue, the location of which was discovered through a Herald want ad.

Very soon people began to know Bloomingdales as a store where they could find just what they wanted at the right price. Thus the seed from which this great enterprise has grown was planted.

Soon the business began to outgrow the store and a move was inevitable. In 1875 Bloomingdales moved into larger quarters a quarter of a block away. This removal accelerated the growth of the business so that in the year 1886 another removal was necessary. On October 4th of that year, Bloomingdale Brothers moved three blocks further uptown to 59th Street and Third Avenue, where stands to-day this great and busy shopping centre.

The story of the growth of the building to its present proportions is interesting. When Bloomingdales moved to Third Avenue and 59th Street they occupied but the corner of that block.

The firm was, even at that early day, convinced of the power of advertising. They practically had this field to themselves. Their announcements then consisted of a half page in one of the leading evening papers. This made a profound impression, owing to the fact that it was an innovation, and something theretofore unknown. The result was that in a few years the extension of the building was absolutely necessary.

Various buildings were added from time to time, and soon came the great structure Bloomingdales now occupy. It is large, having six stories and a large basement, besides a conservatory on the roof. It is perfectly lighted, and contains every improvement that goes to make a modern building. Large elevators of the safest and most improved type carry patrons and sight-seers quickly and comfortably from one immense floor to another, and the inclined moving stairway, the first one in a mercantile establishment in this country, in the big rotunda affords another novel means of transportation from the main to the second floor.

Buyers, who are experts in their various lines, in conjunction with the managers of the firm's foreign offices, are constantly seeking the best of the world's best wherever it may be, and with ample capital behind them are able to buy merchandise most advantageously.

The Bloomingdale store is remarkable, inasmuch as it is out of the so-called shopping trade centre of New York. Shoppers do not drift to Bloomingdales. They are drawn there. Shoppers do not drop into Bloomingdales casually. They go there from choice. This store draws trade from every section of Greater New York and miles around.

It was neither luck nor chance that brought this great business.

Whether it was good management, good goods, or right prices, or whether it was the combination of them all, it is left for the store's thousands of steadfast friends to say.

The organization of Bloomingdales' helpers is a source of admiration. Each individual in his or her particular position is a part of a well-drilled whole.

This big store has its social side also. This social element is encouraged by an organization and entertainments, exploited as a part of the Bloomingdale plan. Bloomingdale Brothers' Employees Mutual Aid Society, with every employee a member, contributes to maintain the esprit de corps noticeable in the atmosphere of the store, and serves to promote a wholesome intimacy among the employees. When the members of this Mutual Aid Society are sick or in distress, they participate in the benefits of the society. An endowed fund, called the Fannie Myers Fund, in honor of its founder, the late Mrs. Fannie Myers, sister of Messrs. Bloomingdale, is a particularly beneficial factor of this society.

No other large store in this city is so quickly and easily reached from the average distance. The phrase "all cars transfer to Bloomingdales" was inspired by the easy accessibility that this store enjoys. From Brooklyn, from Long Island City, from the Bronx, from Hoboken, Jersey City, Newark, from anywhere there is a direct line by ferry and car to Bloomingdales.

Modern Plumbing

THE sanitary appliances installed in the building of to-day are recognized on a par of importance with its general furnishing.

My practical experience of sixteen years and the fact that I have made a specialty of the higher class work in all its details is a recommendation which should be the most forceful of any. Very best references can be furnished. Personal attention to all work.

If you desire to remodel the plumbing in your residence or any property you may control, I shall be glad to submit specifications, sketches and estimates. Country work solicited.

The Peach-blow Noileville

is the smartest scarf that gentlemen will wear in the Spring of 1902. A new silk whose unfinish of weave gives it a finish that makes it more than finished. Briskly new and strikingly beautiful. At any dealer who sells neckwear, or send 50 cts. mentioning your haberdasher's name and we will supply you direct.

Bloomingdales' Laces

The Bloomingdale Lace section is a noted one. Here congregate some of the greatest modistes of the metropolis to select from the exquisite collections of real and imitation laces. Here also congregate those who do not know what the most popular styles are, realizing that what Bloomingdales supplies them with is the absolutely correct and most reasonably priced.

Bloomingdales' Handkerchiefs

Bloomingdales' handkerchiefs are famous for their quality and beauty. Whenever it is possible, strictly pure linen sorts only are offered. When price forbids, however, only the best sorts of cotton handkerchiefs are sold and these are in no way masqueraded as linen. Thus you always know just exactly what you are buying.

Bound to Give Satisfaction !

A skirt is bound to give satisfaction when bound with the

New Manhattan Mohair Skirt Binding

A closely woven, wear-resisting binding which affords absolute protection to the skirt's edge.

It not only gives a distinct finishing touch to the garment, but lasts so long and wears so well as to make it the most serviceable and economical kind to buy.

It comes in all widths and a variety of shades. Either five or thirty-six yards. A sample card can be had for the asking.

Your dealer keeps this binding in stock. If he doesn't, he ought to. If he will not get it for you, send 15 cents in stamps for a five-yard piece.

M. Heminway & Sons Spool Silk

A Familiar Article in Every Household for the Past Half Century

Sizes—Uniform and Reliable

Thread—Extra Strong and Smooth

Measure—Warranted Full 100 Yards

In all Letters

Any article that is the best of its kind is sure to hold public favor, though the price may be a trifle higher than imitations. There are spool silks put up similar in appearance to HEMINWAY'S which many dealers are persuaded to buy because they afford more profit; though represented to be as good as HEMINWAY'S, they are not, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar qualities of the genuine.

Don't Forget the Brand

Postal Information

Domestic Rates of Postage

All mailable matter for transmission by the United States mails within the United States is divided into four classes, under the following regulations. (Domestic rates apply to Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Tutuila, Porto Rico, Guam, Hawaii, and the Philippines.)

First-Class Matter.—This class includes letters, postal cards, and anything sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, or anything containing writing not allowed as an accompaniment to printed matter under class three.

Rates of letter postage to any part of the United States, two cents per ounce or fraction thereof.

Rates on local or drop letters at free delivery offices, two cents per ounce or fraction thereof. At offices where there is no free delivery by carriers, one cent per ounce or fraction thereof.

Rates on postal cards, one cent (double or "reply" cards, two cents). Nothing must be added or attached to a postalcard, except that a printed address slip not larger than 2 inches by  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch may be pasted on the address or message side. The addition of anything else subjects the card to letter postage. A card containing any threat, offensive dun, or any scurrilous or indecent communication will not be forwarded. The rule that has heretofore existed excluding from the face of a postal card words indicating the occupation or business of the addressee has been revoked. In future these additions, or others of a like general character, will be held to be constructively a part of the address, and therefore permissible. Cards that have been spoiled in printing or otherwise will not be redeemed.

"PRIVATE MAILING CARDS" bearing written messages may be transmitted in the domestic mails at the rate of a cent apiece, stamps to be affixed by the sender; such cards to be sent openly in the mails.

Second-Class Matter.—This class includes all newspapers, periodicals, or matter exclusively in print and regularly issued at stated intervals as frequently as four times a year, from a known office of publication or news agency, to actual subscribers or news agents, and transient newspapers and publications of this character mailed by persons other than publishers. Publications having the characteristics of books and such as are not subscribed for on account of their literary merits, but because of other inducements, are not eligible to second-class privileges. Also periodical publications of benevolent and fraternal societies, etc. This applies to all reports and the like made by officers of societies organized under the lodge system and having a membership of a thousand persons, and of the bulletins and proceedings of strictly professional, literary, historical and scientific associations and institutions, trade unions, etc., provided only that these be published not less often than four times a year, and that they be printed on and be bound in paper. Publishers who wish to avail themselves of the privileges of the act are required to make formal application to the department through the postmaster at the place of publication, producing satisfactory evidence that the organizations represented come within the purview of the law, and that the object of the publications is to further the objects and purposes of the organizations.

Third-Class Matter.—Mail matter of the third class includes printed books, pamphlets, engravings, circulars in print (or by the hectograph, electric-pen, or similar process when at least twenty identical copies, separately addressed, are mailed at post-office windows at one time), and other matter wholly in print, proof-sheets, corrected proof-sheets and manuscript copy accompanying the same.

The rate on matter of this class is one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

Fourth-Class Matter.—Fourth-class matter is all mailable matter not included in the three preceding classes which is so prepared for mailing as to be easily withdrawn from the wrapper and examined. It embraces merchandise and samples of every description and coin or specie.

Rate of postage one cent for each ounce or fraction thereof (except seeds, roots, bulbs, cuttings, cions and plants, the rate on which is one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof). This matter must be fully prepaid, or it will not be forwarded. The affixing of special delivery ten-cent stamps in addition to the regular postage entitles fourth-class matter to special delivery.

Registration.—All kinds of postal matter may be registered at the rate of eight cents for each package in addition to the regular rates of postage, to be fully prepaid by stamps. Each package must bear the name and address of the sender, and a receipt will be returned from the person to whom addressed. Mail matter can be registered at all post-offices in the United States.

An indemnity—not to exceed $10 for any one registered piece, or the actual value of the piece, if it is less than $10—shall be paid for the loss of first-class registered matter.

Domestic Money Orders.—Domestic money orders are issued by money-order post-offices for any amount up to $100, at the following rates:

For sums not exceeding $2.50, 3 cents; over $2.50 to $5, 5 cents; over $5 to $10, 8 cents; over $10 to $20, 10 cents; over $20 to $30, 12 cents; over $30 to $40, 15 cents; over $40 to $50, 18 cents; over $50 to $60, 20 cents; over $60 to $75, 25 cents; over $75 to $100, 30 cents.

Stamped Envelopes.—Embossed stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers of several denominations, sizes, and colors are kept on sale at post-offices, singly or in quantities, at a small advance on the postage rate. Stamps cut from stamped envelopes are valueless; but postmasters are authorized to give good stamps for stamped envelopes or newspaper wrappers that may be spoiled in directing, if presented in whole condition and with satisfactory evidence.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY

Story of the Tragedy of the Death of President McKinley

On Friday, September 6, 1901, the country was startled by the awful news that President William McKinley had been assassinated at the Temple of Music in the Exposition grounds at Buffalo.

President John G. Milburn of the Exposition had introduced the President to the great crowd in the temple, and men, women and children came forward for a personal greeting.

In the line was Leon Czolgosz, whose right hand was wrapped in a handkerchief. Folded in the handkerchief was a thirty-two calibre self-acting revolver holding five bullets. As he stepped up to greet the President, he fired through the bandage without removing the handkerchief. The first bullet entered too high for the purpose of the assassin, who fired again as soon as his finger could move the trigger.

As the President staggered, Secret Service Detective Geary caught him in his arms and President Milburn helped to support him. In a moment all was confusion. The assassin was beset by a hundred hands and would undoubtedly have been killed had not the President requested that no harm be done to him. The President was immediately removed to the Milburn mansion, where an operation was performed.

As the first bullet had struck a button, it had deflected somewhat, and had not penetrated far. The second bullet, however, had passed the anterior and posterior walls of the stomach, going completely through that organ.

Dr. P. M. Rixey, the President's family physician, was a constant watcher at the bedside, and, with Secretary Cortelyou, issued official bulletins, which were primarily most encouraging.

Mrs. McKinley was permitted to see her husband daily, but only for a few minutes at a time. She evinced true bravery, and was most earnest in her endeavor to sustain the President in his great battle for life, as he had sustained her but a few weeks previously when she had herself lain critically ill in San Francisco.

In less than a week, however, a new and serious complication, heart failure, appeared, and on Saturday, September 14, 1901, six and a half days after the shot of the anarchist assassin, President McKinley passed away.

In the latter hours of suspense word was flashed to Vice-President Roosevelt, who was gunning in the heart of the Adirondack woods, and as soon as the summons reached him he started on one of the wildest night rides in history, over dark, well-nigh impassable roads, hoping against hope to reach the dying President before the end. Death, however, had claimed the Chief Executive before his successor was more than half way on his journey to the bedside of the dying man.

The funeral services of William McKinley, the man, took place at the Milburn house in Buffalo, Sunday, September 15th. The funeral of William McKinley, the President, commenced the next afternoon in the official building of the city where he died. For one day the body lay in state in the city hall, and from there it was taken to Washington, just two weeks from the day when the President had gone forth to lend his measure of encouragement to that great enterprise, the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

Upon arriving at Washington, the remains lay in the East Room of the White House for one night, that spacious apartment where the President had been so often the central figure of notable gatherings, and where before him had rested the remains of Lincoln, Garfield, Secretary of State Gresham and other distinguished public servants, before their final interment.

At nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, September 17, 1901, the funeral cortege of William McKinley, twenty-fifth President of the United States, and third incumbent of the office to fall by an assassin's hand, started from the White House toward the Capitol.

President Roosevelt, accompanied by his wife and sister, arrived half an hour earlier at the executive mansion and were given seats in the Red Room, Precisely at the hour appointed, the pall-bearers, enlisted men from the army and navy, lifted the black casket of him who had been named "Our well-beloved" and carried it for the last time through the doors and down to the waiting hearse.

President Roosevelt, with his wife and sister, occupied the first carriage. Next in order came the carriage of ex-President Grover Cleveland, who was accompanied by General John M. Wilson and Admiral Robley D. Evans. Following directly came the justices of the Supreme Court in their robes of office, and army and navy men in full uniform continued the slow-moving procession. Representatives of foreign governments in all their trappings of state followed in order. One carriage bore the Hon. Gerald Lowther, of the British legation, assigned by a cabled order to personally represent King Edward VII of England.

Rev. Dr. Naylor, presiding elder of the Washington district, and the venerable Bishop Andrews, of whose church President McKinley had been a life-long member, conducted the services, after which the guards took their places about the casket and the big bronze doors of the Capitol were thrown open and the crowds admitted to gaze for the last time on the face of the nation's lamented chief. So great was the crush that twice the doors had to be closed, to prevent a panic, which at times seemed almost unavoidable.

The funeral train bearing the remains of President McKinley crossed the western border of Pennsylvania and entered his home state and his home congressional district at ten o'clock A. M. on Wednesday, September 18.

From the state line to Canton the line of mourners was almost continuous, company on company of state militia presented arms while peal upon peal of the death knell came from the church and court house bells.

The funeral train proper, bearing the body of President McKinley, arrived at twelve o'clock; it was met by Judge Day, at the head of the local reception committee, while assembled about the station was the entire militia of the state.

While the funeral services were being held over the remains of President McKinley on the Sunday after his death, every church edifice in the nation was the scene of a similar service. Without regard to creed, without regard to location, far and near, high and low, in cathedral and in chapel, preacher and people united in sorrowful and sympathetic funeral services and in worship of the God whom William McKinley had worshiped. At Canton, when word was given for the last public farewell, President Roosevelt, followed by his cabinet, stepped into the hall; after these came General Miles, General Otis and General Brooke, with other officers of the army and navy. From the court house the body was taken for the last time and laid in the little front parlor of the home from which the nation had called its chosen chief five years before.

For six days and through hundreds of miles a sorrowing nation had followed his bier. After the brief and impressive services in his home church the funeral cortege wended its way to Westlawn cemetery. From the hill top the President's salute of twenty-one guns, fired at intervals of one minute, announced its coming.

After the arrival of the casket there was a moment's pause, then Bishop Joyce read the burial service of the Methodist Church. Instantly from the eight buglers rang out the soldier's last call, "taps." The vault gates closed with a hollow clang, and the soldiers took up their sad round of sentry duty in the lonely cemetery.

During the services the entire nation suspended business, and even London became a city of sorrow. In far away Manila, in the tiniest hamlet heads were bowed in grief, and the sorrows of the cities bathed all the land in tears.

Under this shadow the new Executive took up the duties which had been so suddenly thrust upon him. The nation resumed its work after a pause at the brink of the grave of a man honored and beloved by thousands, ruthlessly cut down in his vigor by an assassin's hand. He left behind him a record of spotless citizenship, superb ability, and beautiful simplicity and loyalty in his private life.

Leon Czolgosz, the assassin, was brought to trial Monday, September 23, at Buffalo, and on Tuesday, September 24, was adjudged guilty. On Thursday, September 26, he was brought to court to receive the sentence of death. On Tuesday morning, October 29, he paid the penalty of his crime in the electric chair in the prison at Auburn, N. Y.
